

DISCOVER YOUR RISK

Websense offers a free Information Leak Prevention (ILP) risk assessment to help organizations identify risks to compliance and data loss. As IT managers invest in new business systems and processes to exchange critical information to, from and about customers, partners, and employees in real-time, their risk of information leaks increases. The Websense risk assessment is a simple and effective tool to measure the risk of information leakage, and is the first step toward building and implementing an effective leak prevention solution.

Discover

- Policy violations for regulatory and corporate compliance
- Groups or individuals responsible for information breaches
- Private and confidential information being leaked
- Unauthorized recipients of sensitive information
- How information is being leaked

PLAN

Websense works with your IT management team to understand your business processes and compliance requirements, identify critical data, create policies for transparent monitoring, and implement the assessment. Websense will provide onsite resources to manage your personalized risk assessment. Your team will be fully supported throughout the assessment and will receive an accurate and actionable report of all findings.

MONITOR

Using patented technology, Websense will analyze your outbound traffic to identify the source, type, and destination of confidential information, including credit card numbers, social security numbers, source code, and customer information for all proprietary or confidential information (over 300 file types and all databases). Websense powerful analysis engine will identify your risk to compliance regulations (including GLBA, HIPAA, CA SB1386/CC1798, Sarbanes-Oxley, PIPEDA), corporate governance, brand and reputation, and help you identify broken business processes.

PROTECT

Websense will provide a report of findings with rich analysis of your organizations risk, including a compliance score card, executive summary, and recommendations for improving your leak prevention capabilities. Armed with this information, Websense will help you take the requisite steps to prevent data loss, secure confidential information, ensure compliance with regulatory requirements, and mitigate your organizations risk.
